AJORÍ

A CAREFUL MIX OF ART AND FUNCTIONAL DESIGN

Ajorí is a creative solution for organize and store seasonings, spices and various culinary condiments, inspired by the elegant shape of the garlic bulb. This kitchen accessory holds six containers, designed to contain different products used for the seasoning of several dishes, adapting to the different culinary traditions of each country.

Its elegant organic design, make it a sculptural piece, resulting of an excellent ornament to reflect and a conversation starter around a table, not to mention that by its garlic shape, it can be an excellent protector of our home or business against bad vibrations.

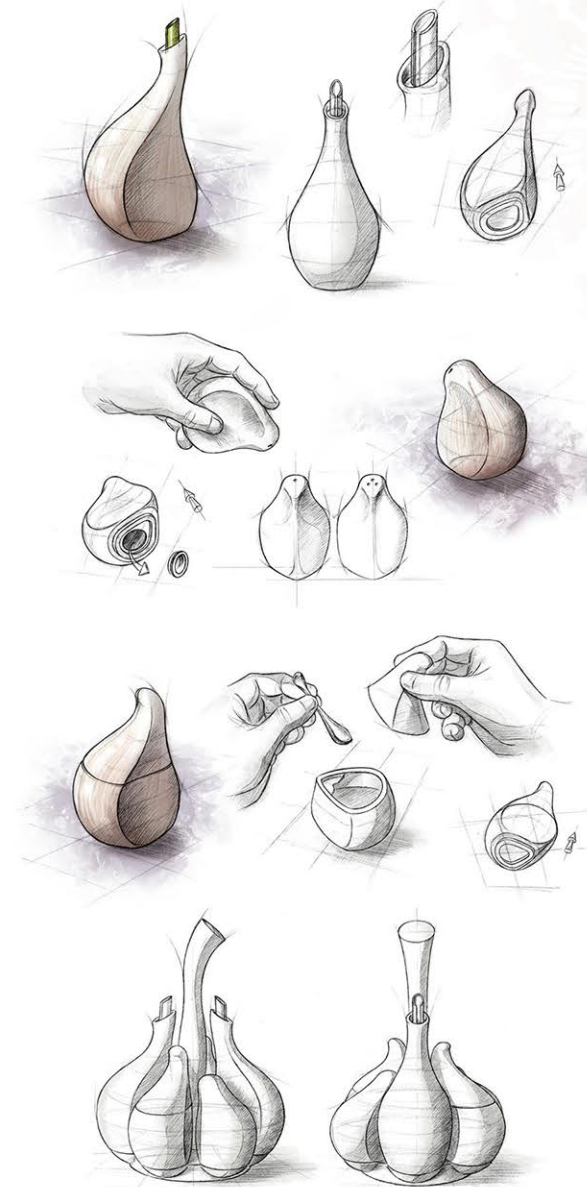

BIO-INSPIRATION

THE SUGGESTIVE CURVES OF A GARLIC

"We observed, peeled and cut several bulbs of purple garlic. We were impressed by the elegance of its lines defining each piece, the peculiar texture of its skin, and diversity of forms. In front of our eyes appeared a set of containers arranged on a tray, around a stem or handle. Considering the diversity of options in design that we wanted to propose, this one showed with total clarity, the functionality that we were looking for: a cruet in a form of garlic."

MUCH MORE THAN A CRUET

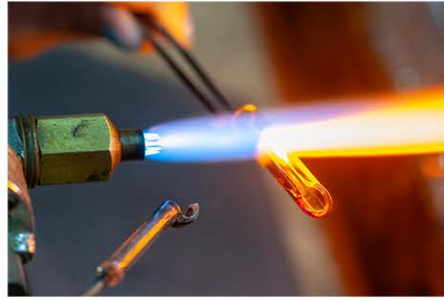

AN EXAMPLE OF ECODESIGN

TECHNOLOGY AND CRAFTSMANSHIP FUSION

Ajorí is made of porcelain, beech wood and borosilicate glass, quality natural materials that are transformed through a careful fusion of contemporary craftsmanship and technology. All the professionals involved in its production have received a fair economic retribution.

SOYTUN

For sushi lovers

SOYTUN is a ceramic piece designed for the increasingly common tasting of the various forms of presentation of raw fish such as sashimi, sushi, tartar... etc. This design serves to contain soy sauce, also has a place for spicy mustard (wasabi) and finally has a part to let chopsticks when they are not used.

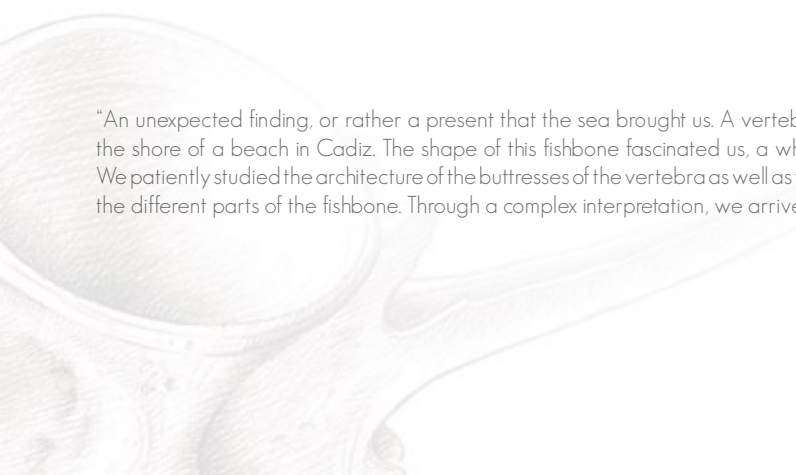

For its manufacture, we use enamelled stoneware, attached to a painstaking craft production. In the area of the base, each SOYTUN is signed and numbered by hand.

INSPIRATION

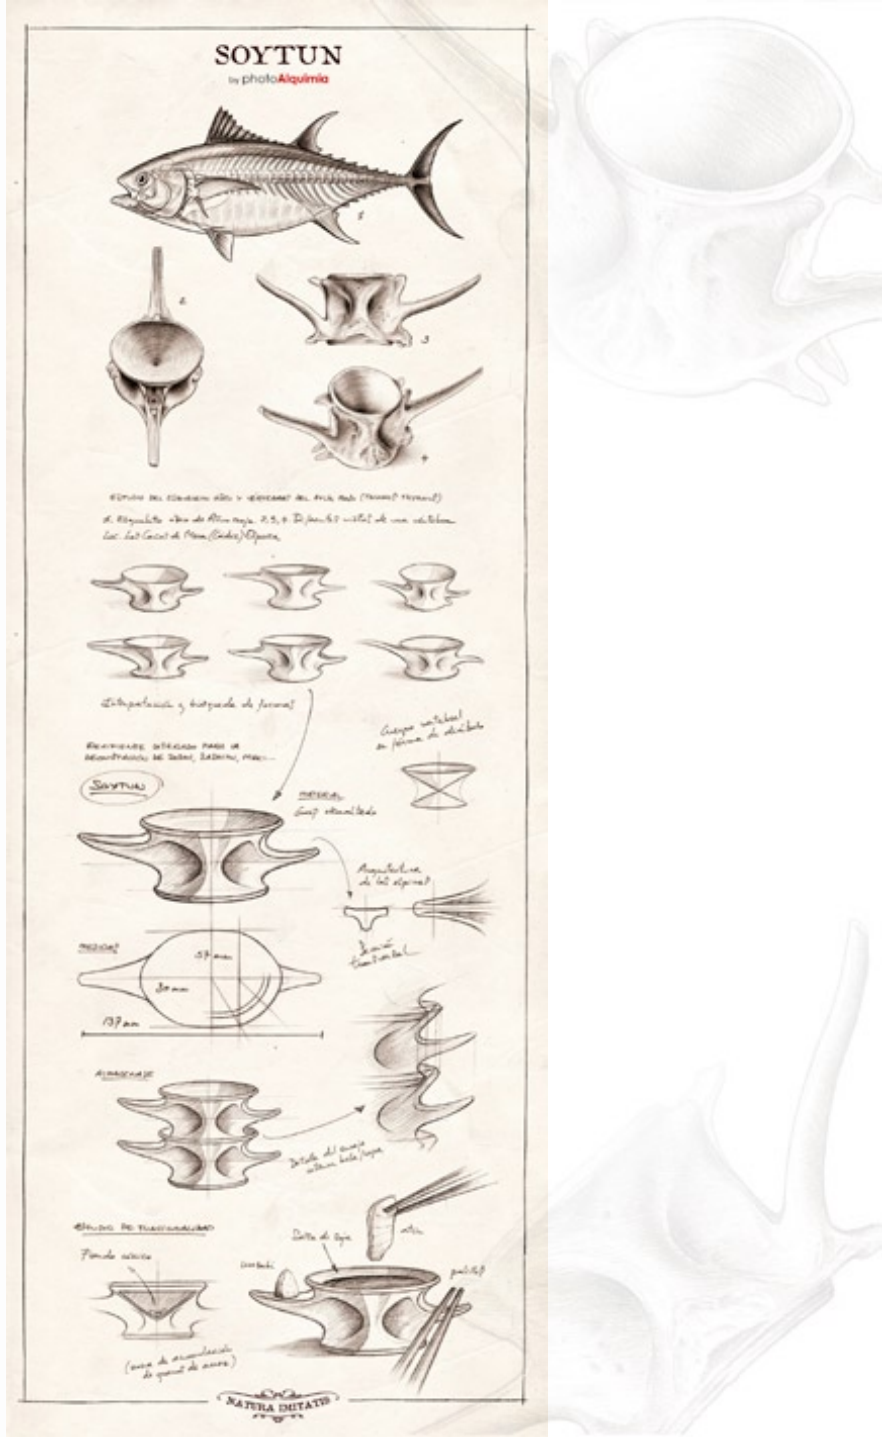

Soytun is dedicated to the sea

"An unexpected finding, or rather a present that the sea brought us. A vertebra found on the shore of a beach in Cadiz. The shape of this fishbone fascinated us, a whole world of possibilities. We patiently studied the architecture of the buttresses of the vertebra as well as the different parts of the fishbone. Through a complex interpretation, we arrived at the conclusion that this was a human vertebra." - Dr. Juan Carlos Rodríguez Cordero

"An unexpected finding, or rather a present that the sea brought us. A vertebra of a tuna found in a walk along the shore of a beach in Cadiz. The shape of this fishbone fascinated us, a whole design of natural engineering. We patiently studied the architecture of the buttresses of the vertebra as well as the cones where are joined together the different parts of the fishbone. Through a complex interpretation, we arrived at the final shape of the design."

TITOBOWL

From the “tapa” to delicatessen

TITOBOWL is a vessel specially designed for tasting different varieties and dressings olives with pit, although it has been adapted for tasting pitted olives and other snacks because turning the top cap of the container, it becomes a toothpick holder.

For manufacturing it, we use porcelain and olive tree turned wood by hand, a mixture of a cold material with a warm one, attached to a painstaking craft production. Each TITOBOWL is signed and numbered by hand.

INSPIRATION

Titobowl is a design dedicated to olive tree, source of the elixir of Mediterranean culture.

"One day, in a meeting with some guest, we tasted an exquisite selection of varieties of olives with pit from various regions of Spain. Within a few minutes of the meeting, we witnessed an uncomfortable situation. Each of those present, seemed to search for the best solution to get rid of the olive pit ("tito"), observing in them all sorts of gestures. Some of them deposited on a napkin in view of everyone, others thrown it to the ground, we even saw as some of them hid it discreetly in their pocket.

And it was at that precise instant, watching curiously an olive showing the pit in sight, when from source of the problem, the solution emerged to solve it. It was in this way that the inspiration for the design of TITOBOWL emerged."

THE PIECE

GIFT PACKAGING

The packaging design is inspired by the image of a can of olives. This box is made by hand, entirely made of cardboard and recycled paper, making it a unique example of eco-packaging, fully respectful of the environment. To open the packaging, you must pull the pull-tab of cardboard, in the same way you would open a can of olives, so it also becomes an excellent gift object.
